Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

5. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

6. Claims 1-15 and 17-120 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by McMakin et al ('359).

The present invention as broadly recited in the independent claims are considered to be met by McMakin et al ('359) who disclose, inter alia, an imaging system including an antenna configured having a curvature, a transmitter and receiver and a processor to convert data into an image of an object. Given the breadth of the claims, it would be encouraged to highlight that which Applicant's consider their invention. In particular, the geometric recitations of the curvature should be more clearly and distinctly defined as the present claims can be interpreted in light of what the prior art shows.

Clearly McMakin et al ('359) show (Figure 7) a subject (person) in the center of two curved apertures which scan the object to ultimate provide an image representation of the object. Numerous claims are directed to this arrangement and thus the numerous claims should be cognizant of this showing. Additionally, McMakin et al ('359) show an object being pivoted while being scanned (see Figure 1).

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claim 16 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

8. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The cited prior art show various imaging systems.
